

The WHPS Weekly

Friday 3rd November 2023

Welcome Back!

Dear parents and carers,

We are pleased to welcome the children back to school and hope that you had a restful half term break. As children begin the second half of the Autumn term, we can see that they are now settled into the routines of their new classroom, familiar with the expectations of their year group and ready to learn! As well as exciting units of learning, the end of the Autumn term has many winter and Christmas celebrations in store which we know the children enjoy.

It was particularly pleasing to see how many children returned after the half term break having read everyday. As you know, at West Hampstead we love and value reading and place huge value on the effective teaching of phonics, early reading and beyond. Fluent, confident readers are able to thrive because they can access and enjoy all of the curriculum areas on offer to them. This week's WHPS Weekly is a Phonics special where Ms Armson, our Phonics & Early Reading lead, shares lots of information about how reading is taught and how you can support at home. There is also information about an upcoming phonics coffee morning.

We look forward to welcoming you into school next week for parents evening. This is an important opportunity for us to build a home-school relationship and to discuss your child's successes, areas for development and things to focus on at home. These meetings are limited to 10 minutes to please arrive promptly with any key questions/discussion points in mind should you have them.

Have a lovely weekend. Let's hope for some sunshine amongst the rainy forecast!

Alex Efford, Assistant Head Teacher

Phonics at WHPS

Welcome to the Phonics edition of WHPS weekly. This week we are zooming in on how phonics and early reading are taught at West Hampstead.

Read on to find out more about how we teach reading and why it is so important.

As a school, our aim is to unlock the fun, joy and learning that comes with reading.

Our curriculum is designed to enable the children to progress as quickly as possible from learning to read to reading to learn.

On the journey to becoming a successful reader, there are five essential components that the children need to develop.

① Phonological Awareness	② Phonics	③ Fluency	④ Vocabulary	⑤ Comprehension
--------------------------------	--------------	--------------	-----------------	--------------------

Strong Phonological Awareness predicts reading success.

We begin work on this in Nursery by providing activities that develop phonological skills. These include:

- Detecting rhyme e.g. through sounds and nursery rhymes
- Detecting syllables in words by clapping them
- Identifying initial letter sounds by orally blending and segmenting words e.g. "Can you h-o-p?"

The more children have opportunities to develop these skills at home and at school, the better they will become!

I spy games with a focus are easy to fit into everyday routines.

e.g. at mealtimes, you could play... "I spy something on my plate beginning with...p" (saying the letter sound not its name)

Phonological Awareness

continues to be crucial as the children enter reception and they need to tackle more complex words.

Phonics involves teaching which letters represent the sounds that make a word. Once children know these individual phonemes they are able to blend them to read and spell.

At West Hampstead, we follow the Little Wandle Letters and Sounds Revised as our Systematic, Synthetic Phonics (SSP) programme to teach phonics, early reading and spelling.

From Reception to the first term in Year 2, the children receive daily phonics lessons which are fun, engaging, interactive and are designed to build over time.

A key element of the sessions is constant revisiting of previously taught sounds and skills so that learning is embedded in the long-term memory and can be applied instantly when reading and writing.

Practice makes permanent!

This is why daily home reading is so important.

You can support at home by providing lots of practise for the children to develop quick recall of all taught sounds and to practise blending and spelling using the new sounds in their homework.

Fluency is the ability to read accurately, at an appropriate pace and with attention to expression. This impacts directly on comprehension.

If children are struggling to sound out words, reading can become exhausting, children can lose motivation and find it harder to comprehend what they are reading.

This is why phonic decoding needs to become automatic and children still need plenty of opportunities to practise reading aloud as they get older and to hear others reading aloud with appropriate phrasing and expression.

At school, children in the younger years read the same book three times a week:

- Session 1—Focus on decoding
- Session 2—Using expression
- Session 3—The children are more fluent and able to discuss comprehension questions

Adults from all around the school support with small group reading provision.

This ensures that we can target each child's reading level and every child is heard reading every day.

Higher up the school, children have daily whole class reading sessions which includes opportunities to read aloud and to learn more about phrasing and using expression.

You can support at home by encouraging your child to read their early reader books several times to develop fluency and by sharing picture storybooks so that they hear fluent reading modelled.

It is generally found that parents tend to read less often to their children as they go through KS2 but older children still benefit hugely from hearing you read to them.

You could take turns to read sections of their home reader books.

vocabulary

Developing a strong vocabulary enables children to think and understand more deeply - the more they understand word meanings, the deeper their comprehension.

Vocabulary development comes from:

- Having quality conversation with others from birth
- Exposure to rich and interesting texts
- Opportunities to discuss the texts they are reading

At school, the children are exposed to new words daily across all areas of the curriculum with lots of opportunities to revisit and use them.

Comprehension is the ultimate goal and the sum of good phonological awareness, automaticity in phonics, reading fluency and a strong vocabulary. If we can extract meaning from a text and think critically about it, then we comprehend.

Learning to read → accessing the curriculum → reading to learn

We are excited at West Hampstead to be going on the journey to reading with your children.

It is important to us that parents are on board with the journey too!

Please speak to your child's teacher at next week's parents evenings if you have any questions or concerns regarding your child's reading progress.
